HOW TO MAKE MAN PERFECT

Stupendous Outdoor Spectacle With 2,000 Actors Planned for Waukegan

WANTS A 30 ACRE TRACK

Chicago Man with $50,000 at Command Looking for Site on Which to Produce Outdoor Spectacle

Waukegan is to show the world how to produce the superman, the perfect human being of whom George Bernard Shaw and other idealistic dreamers have had more or less hazy visions.

In order to do it a spectacle on a larger scale than that of Oberammergau, that will require nine days to perform, will have 41 acts and a cast of 2,000 men, women and children, is to be produced.

Asher R. Gluck, an inventor, with headquarters at 1533 Milwaukee avenue, Chicago, and possessor of a tidy fortune, announced that he would devote all his wealth (he is worth about $50,000), if necessary, to paying the expenses of the big production, which is to be held in the open air in one of the suburbs (and he says now that Waukegan is the place). Training and rehearsals for the performance will occupy the period of one year and during that time those who take part will be provided with board and lodging.

Mr. Gluck was in Waukegan Monday and made this statement:

"I am seeking about 30 acres of land near the city and desire to carry through my enterprise here. What I want is to get such a site at a moderate figure—I will pay for it mind you—and then I shall proceed with my plans. The play will last nine days and this city will jump into world-prominence at once. We will show how perfection of life can be attained; our performances will eclipse those of Oberammergau in some respects."

Here is what the Chicago Evening Post said of Mr. Gluck on July 27, showing that there is foundation to the promoter's scheme, he himself explaining that Waukegan has been selected by him as the site if he can make a deal for land near there.

Mr. Gluck protested after making his announcement that his project is not at all impossible or fantastic. He has spent years in perfecting the plans for it, he says, and the minutest details have been provided for. Negotiations for a suburban tract that will furnish a suitable natural stage and have sufficient transportation facilities for the crowds that will attend are now under way. A large hotel, owned by Mr. Gluck, is in readiness to receive the first of the volunteer performers and others will be added as the need arises.

The competitive system, the family and false ideas of pleasure and recreation are responsible for all our ills of the present. Inventor Gluck believes Socialism, anarchy and all the religions are correct and workable, but only upon the assumption that man is perfect. How to make man perfect is the secret he believes he has found, and through tableaux and a living presentation of society as he believes it might be he hopes to convince the world.

The competitive system, the large corporation, the small shopkeeper and the laborer are to be pilloried in the opening act of the spectacle. The waste caused by the thousands of little stores that line city streets and the hopeless struggle of their owners to get more than a meager living will be depicted. The tableaux will also represent the despotism of the large corporations and the grinding toll of their employees.

The family as a means for educating and improving the rising generation will be another target for satire.

The main ambition of citizens of the future state will be to make the next generation one of perfect men and women, said the projector of the spectacle. The recreation and amusements will be the study of natural law. There will be no shops, no money, no struggle for material welfare. Everyone will work at the thing for which he is best fitted, but all this will be incidental. The perfection of the human race will be the task which will absorb every one.

TAXES MAY BE RAISED

Board of Review Believes Assessments on Ice Houses are Too Low

Members of the Board of Review returned Wednesday evening from a two days' trip through the county, planned for the express purpose of looking over the ice house property of the county with the idea of raising the assessments in case the members found the values were not up where they believed they should be.

The belief has been that the assessments on many of the big houses of the county have not been anywhere near where they should be and the board decided the best way to make sure was to go to the properties and make a person investigation.

They will accordingly raise the valuations where they believe they should be, and, it is felt there are several cases where radical changes will be made.

The board of review this year seems to be going after the tax matter in a most systematic manner, in fact, they seem to be conducting matters even above the average board that has worked for some years.

NECESSARY TO CLEAN SEQUOIT CREEK

Of late many comments have been made upon the rank stench that arose to greet the nostrils of all who had occasion to cross the Sequoit bridge. But although much was said nothing was done until Wednesday afternoon when H. Bock becoming tired of the annoyance took steps toward the getting out of a protest against the condition, with the intention of sending it direct to the State Board of Health.

But before the protest was sent, the local Board of Health decided to look into the matter and upon investigation found that a general cleanup was necessary.

Accordingly the bed of the creek, which at this time is quite dry in some places and in others holding pools of stagnant water, was cleaned out and then flushed by turning in the city water.

This unpleasant condition is due to the extreme drouth which has caused the water in the creek to become so low that it could not carry away the sewerage that empties into it, but it is hoped that by this cleaning the trouble may be done away with for a time at least.

What Keeps the World Alive.

There's the world at large; town, village, country, sea. What is it all about? A man's search for his God, his struggle to fill his stomach, and his desire for his mate. It is only love that keeps the whole pathetic mass together. Fine, slender cords, binding men and women. The light in the woman's eyes, the smiles of children, the actions men do from affection—these things keep the world alive. Nothing matters but that. The worst man loves somebody. The best man loves somebody.—New York Press.

10,000 FARMERS WANTED

Mid-Summer Farmers' College Would Like Grown Up Students to Book

COLLEGE TO OPEN SOON

Many Speakers of Renown will be at Mid-Summer State Farmers' Institute August 16, 17 and 18

The Illinois College of Agriculture is in quest of 10,000 people, from both city and country, who are interested in the improvement of farming in Illinois, and who would enjoy spending a vacation of three days, August 16, 17 and 18, at the college when the mid-summer State Farmers' Institute is being held there.

Special railroad rates to Champaign and Urbana may be secured, a fare and one-half being authorized for the return trip, from all points within the state, by the central and western passenger traffic association. The Illinois traction system has offered a rate of a fare and one-third for the round trip, all tickets on both the steam and electric roads good for returning August 19.

The mid-summer institute is a brand new thing. As it will be held when farm work is slack, farmers will be glad to give themselves and families a delightful vacation of short duration among the cool shade trees in the midst of which the beautiful buildings of the state college of agriculture are located.

Arrangements are being made for entertaining an enormous crowd. In the words of Secretary H. A. McKeene of the Illinois Farmers' Institute, "unless very unfavorable weather condition, or some unforeseen and serious thing occurs to prevent, there will be the largest crowd at the university during these three days it ever experienced."

At the $100,000 Young Men's Christian Association building of the university, conceded to be one of the most beautiful association buildings in the United States, and built by popular student subscription, will be located the bureau of information where each visitor in expected to register as soon as possible after reaching town and to seek for rooms and any other desired information. All street cars from Champaign to Urbana run directly past the association building.

At regular intervals during each of the three days, guides will conduct excursion parties over carefully selected routes extending to every point of interest on the 450 acre farm. Experiments, some of which have been in operation for thirty-two years, and are the oldest in the United States, having a world wide reputation, will be fully explained by those having the tests in charge.

The program of the general sessions includes addresses by Mr. N. Kaumanns, imperial German special commissioner of agriculture; H. J. Webber, director, New York College of Agriculture, Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y.; William Butterworth, Moline, Ill.; Governor Charles S. Deneen; Dr. E. Davenport, dean, Illinois College of Agriculture, and O. C. Simonds, landscape gardener, Chicago, who will give an illustrated address on "The Beauty of the Farm."

THE OLD SPACIOUS CLOSET

The Roomy Old Closet, Which Fond Recollection Presents to the City Resident.

"Rarely indeed does Mrs. Billtops indulge in mournful reminiscence," said Mr. Billtops. "Cheerfulness is her keynote and her courage never fails; but this morning when she was looking for something in a trunk which for lack of closet space she keeps in her room, she said to me: 'Ezra, do you remember the closet I had in my room when we lived in So and So?' And I said I did."

"If I should put this trunk in the closet here," said Mrs. Billtops, "I couldn't shut the door."

"To that proposition I assented. 'But you could put this trunk in that closet,' Mrs. Billtops continued, 'and still have plenty of room to walk around it there to get at the things hanging on the walls.'"

"I remembered, and Mrs. Billtops almost groaned."

"We would not go back to the old oaken bucket, we'd rather have the water laid on; we wouldn't want again those old time freezing rooms, we like our rooms better warmed; but ah, those old time closets! Those grand old closets, as big as a present day room!"

RISKS LIFE TO SAVE CHILDREN

Girl on Runaway Horse Near Bowmansville Has Narrow Escape from Death

FATHER IN PURSUIT GUIDES

Nine-Year-Old Melba Du Brock Drives Animal Over Broken Bridge and Into Stone Wall

Guiding a frantic horse into a stone wall to save herself, after driving the beast over the broken side of a bridge to save a party of children, was the thrilling experience of Melba Du Brock, 9-year-old daughter of W. C. Du Brock, of 5205 Evanton avenue.

That the crazy span did not sink under the wildly racing nag and plunge the lassie into a creek was one marvel; that the animal stopped at the wall and permitted the heroine to slide out of the saddle to safety, was the blessing of the whole affair, as related by the little equestrienne's father.

The road between Bownanville and Mayfair and the dilapidated, abandoned bridge was the scene of the dramatic incident.

Melba Du Brock's father is the owner of a stable of fine horse and the little girl has become a wondrous equestrienne, riding horses that older riders feared to mount. She rode out toward Mayfair with an early morning riding party of Edgewater residents.

When several miles west of Bownanville her horse took fright and bolted. The chubby little hands tightened on the reins but the horse, thoroughly maddened, was soon beyond the rider's control.

The road is an unfrequented, and ahead of the girl was the partly dismantled bridge, which once served the farmers of the vicinity for bringing their products to the city markets. One side only is in condition for travel. Just as the racing animal was about to dash across the bridge a picnic party of children came upon the structure from the opposite approach. A warning cry told little Miss Du Brock, herself running a race with death, of the children's danger.

She seized the left rein with both hands and, pulling with all the strength left in her aching arms plotted the crazed animal over the broken portion of the bridge, away from the little children.

Mr. Du Brock meantime had spurred his horse on in hot pursuit of the runaway and shouted words of encouragement to his darling daughter. In the distance loomed a big stone wall, but the eyes of the pursuing parent saw in it safety for his child.

He shouted for the girl to guide the horse toward the wall. This she did, and the frightened animal, brought face to the wall, stopped. Miss Du Brock slid from the saddle into her father's arms.

The horse the girl was riding is a thoroughbred Kentucky gaited animal, named Honolulu. Owing to the horse's viciousness, Mr. Du Brock purchased her for $40. He has since refused $500 for the animal.

Gretna Green Marriages.

The production of a Gretna Green marriage certificate in court is not absolutely unprecedented. For in the Wakefield case, in 1827, such a certificate was produced and identified by the famous blacksmith himself, and in another case at Carlisle asizes, in the early nineteenth century, a Gretna Green certificate played its part. Some idea of the number of the fact that one of the "priests" is said to have had some times made as much as £100 a week, a code of secret signs between him and the postboys enabling him to ascertain the station of his clients, and to charge accordingly, just as a doctor of today charges you according to your supposed means.—London Chronicle.

Clung to Their Tin Cups.

In the middle ages drinking glasses and cups were rare and they were generally mounted upon a foot or stem of gold or silver, enriched with precious stones. Not until the fifteenth century, when Venice began to send her wares abroad, did the use of glasses become quite general, and even then, in ordinary life, the people clung to their "tin cups," which were often of beautiful design and workmanship.

FORTY IN A CLOSE CALL

Interurban Car Ditched to Save Collision, With Fright

Forty passengers, many of them Chicagoans, had a thrilling escape from death at Kenosha Wednesday afternoon, when a car on the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway, south bound, running forty miles an hour, was ditched to avoid a collision with a freight train on the Milwaukee division of the Chicago and Northwestern railway. Motor-man Berg of Milwaukee is said to have failed to see the signal set against him and drove his car into the derailing switch at the crossing.

The passengers were thrown to the floor of the car and were severely shaken up but were otherwise unhurt. Some became hysterical when they realized their narrow escape.

THE DROUTH IS MOST SERIOUS FOR COUNTY

Haying is nearly over with in this region and the oat harvest is well advanced. The former is a fair crop, but the dry, hot weather has ripened oats a little prematurely and the yield will be rather light.

Corn is struggling along in a discouraged sort of way, with only an occasional piece promising anything more than a little fodder. Potatoes are likely to be "small and a few in a hill."

Dairymen in some parts of the county are feeding their cows almost as regularly as in midwinter in an attempt to keep up the flow of milk, the pastures being barren.

While fugitive showers have relieved the situation slightly in some localities there has been no general soaking rain for fully two months, and in some neighborhoods there has not been a shower sufficient to lay the dust.

On the whole the drouth is the most serious in its effect upon the farms and dairies that Lake county has experienced in many years.

An Inquiring Spirit.

"Liquor," said the Experienced Cop, "surely gives a man a peculiar way of looking at things. Last night I was patrolling my beat through a side street when I saw a drunk backed up against a railing, and smiling cheerfully at a half dozen young hoodlums who were pretending to josh him, while in reality they were going through his pockets. They beat it as soon as I hove in sight. 'Say,' I said to the drunk, 'don't you know that those hoodlums were going through you?' 'Sure I know it,' said the drunk; 'I just wanted to see how far the darned little rascals would go. Here's where I've got $500 in my inside vest pocket, and they never guessed it.'"

Struck A Rich Mine.

S. W. Bends, of Coal City, Ala., says he struck a perfect mine of health in Dr. King's New Life Pills for they cured him of liver and kidney trouble after 12 years of suffering. They are the best pills on earth for constipation, malaria, headache, dyspepsia, debility, 25c. at J. H. Swan's.

ATTEMPTS TO TAKE HIS LIFE

FRIGHTENED PEOPLE FLEE

Man Fires Bullet From Thirty-Eight Calibre Revolver Into His Left Breast and Escapes Death by Miracle

Charles Swanson a constable in the town of Somers and a manager of a boarding house at Twin Lakes at which many summer resort people from Chicago and Milwaukee are spending the summer made a dramatic attempt to kill himself in the dining room of the hotel on Wednesday when he fired a bullet from a thirty-eight calibre revolver into his left breast.

By some strange freak of providence the bullet struck one of the ribs of Swanson and glanced off and came out along the left shoulder and there is every reason to believe that Swanson will recover. Dr. L. H. Bill of Genoa Junction, who was called to attend the would-be suicide declared that the wound was not a serious one and that Swanson would recover barring the possibility of blood poisoning setting in.

Swanson had been drinking for several days and he was drunk when he fired the bullet into his breast. He could not have picked a more dramatic setting for the attempt upon his life. The guests at the boarding house had gathered in the dining room of the place for their dinner and the tables were filled up when Swanson came into the room and took his place at the head of one of the tables. He was very red in the face and seemed to be laboring under great mental strain. He had been acting queerly for several days but the guests at the house had attributed this to the fact that he had been drinking heavily. He turned to one of the broaders and said something and then arose in his chair and pulling the revolver from his pocket said:

"Well here goes."

With this he discharged the revolver. One of the men near him caught him as he fell and wrenched the revolver from his hands. The dining room was emptied as if by magic as the guests fled in panic from the scene. Swanson was carried to his room in the boarding house and he remained fully conscious and declared that he wanted to die. Later while the guests were getting a physician to dress his wound Swanson went out into the yard about the house and began drinking again.

He told Dr. Bill that he desired to die and that he had carefully planned to shoot himself in the dining room of the hotel. He refused to give any reason for his action and it is thought that the man is temporarily deranged.

Swanson has lived in the town of Salem for some time and was formerly employed as keeper of a boarding house for the Lawler Ice Company. He is not unknown to the police officers of Kenosha and county and it is claimed that he has a past which is not unknown to the people in the neighborhood of Twin Lakes.

Bullet Traveled Far.

The bullet with which a man committed suicide at a Dover (Eng.) hotel was stated at the inquest to have passed through his head, through a door, along a passage, and through a second door.

The Better Way.

Said She—"Wouldn't it be grand if we could only see ourselves as others see us?" Said He—"Well, hardly; but it would be grand if we could make others see us as we see ourselves."

SYNOPSIS.

Andy Meelen, aged millionaire miner, is dying and orders a will drawn up, leaving all his property to the son of a sister of whom he has heard nothing for years, and whose married name he does not know. Meelen was married years before, but left his wife after a quarrel in which he struck her. He learned later that she and her daughter were dead. The scene shifts to New York, introducing Wilfrid Stennis, who is telling his fiancée, Eunice Trevecca, what he would do if he were the possessor of wealth. In the law office of Carboy, Passavant & Cozine, attorneys for the estate of Meelen, Roger Hews reports the result of his search for heirs of Meelen. He conceals the fact that he has discovered that Meelen's daughter is living. Wilfrid Stennis replies to an advertisement for information concerning the dead mother, Martha Meelen, and is told that he is the heir to Andy Meelen's millions. He wants to marry Eunice at once, but she resolutely demurs. He meets Clara Passavant, frivolous daughter of his attorney. Eunice becomes jealous of Wilfrid's attentions to Clara. He builds a yacht and starts on a trip abroad, the Passavants being included in the party. Roger Hews, having discovered that Eunice Trevecca is the daughter of Andy Meelen, plans to use the information to his own advantage. He proposes to Eunice and is rejected. Judged for two years of safety in Europe, Wilfrid returns and immediately calls on her. His attempt to renew his former relations with her meet with no encouragement. Roger Hews becomes Wilfrid's secretary. The engagement of Clara Passavant and Wilfrid is announced. Hews is again rejected by Eunice, and reveals his true nature. Hews attempts to blackmail Wilfrid and fails. The latter forces him to reveal the fact that Eunice is the rightful heir. He turns over the entire fortune to Eunice and breaks his engagement with Clara.

CHAPTER X.—Continued.

He found Eunice in the old parlor, but not alone. John Trevecca was now confined to the house, and only ventured out on very fine days. The girl was bending over him, arranging his pillows, as Stennis was announced. With a little cry of astonishment she straightened up at the sight of him, and after a slight hand-clasp stood idly by while Wilf—once more, it seemed, the kindly, simple Wilf of old—sat down by the side of the sick man and strove to cheer him up.

But something told Eunice it was not for this or for a merely friendly call that he had come.

"Eunice," he said at length, rising and standing before her, "I have brought you some wonderful news. There has been a dreadful mistake, and for these three years past I have been occupying the place that is rightfully yours."

The girl stared at him with a frightened, wide-open eyes.

"Don't be alarmed," said Wilfrid reassuringly. "It's nothing to be afraid of. I only learned the truth an hour ago, and I wanted to be the first to tell you. It seems that you are the daughter of my Uncle Andrew—we are first cousins, you see—whom he believed to be dead, and all his money belongs by right to you. It is what he would have wished—if he had known that he had a daughter he would never have thought of me, you know. So from this moment I retire in your favor. The lawyers will tell you all about it, and I shall instruct them to turn everything over to you. I believe that's all I came to say, Eunice. Good-by."

He took her hand in farewell, which she yielded to him mechanically, and before she could detain him by look or word he was gone. She took one step in his direction, her arms outstretched in a gesture of great yearning, uttered one heart-cry, "Wilf!" and then fell to the floor in a dead faint—something she never did in her life before, nor has since.

Then followed for a few days a perfect whirl of excitement, for Mr. Carboy appeared upon the scene and verified in detail all that Wilfrid had sketched in outline. And when it came to considering the narrative dovetailed together so astutely by Roger Hews, old John Trevecca was able to add many little corroborative details which had lain dormant in his memory for years.

So Eunice Trevecca found herself in all probability the richest single woman in America. Her first thought was to give her stepfather the best of care and attendance, under which his health speedily mended, being of a constitution naturally hale and hearty.

At first Eunice insisted that Wilfrid should share and share alike. Finding this impracticable, she offered to settle a certain definite sum upon him. But not a dollar would he accept, saying that if she would forgive him the large sums he had disbursed during his false tenures he would be content.

All these attempted negotiations were conducted by the lawyers; not once did the cousins meet, not a line passed between them.

"I treated her too shabbily when I was well off," said Wilfrid to himself; "I can't and won't go hanging and whining about for a chance bone now that our positions are reversed."

On her part Eunice was hurt and offended that her generous and kindly meant offers had been so steadily rejected.

"It looks as if he wanted to put me in the wrong," she reflected, yet a second thought told her that such was not Wilfrid's way.

CHAPTER XI.

The summer swooped down on New York in the latter days of June with a rush, as is its wont. The walls of the new house on Riverside drive were up to the heavy cornices, and the roof was closed in, for Eunice had given orders that the work was not to be stopped nor the original plans one whit altered.

Nearly every afternoon she and old John would drive up there after the heat of the day, for, having made the seductive acquaintance of the Claremont, the old man developed a perfect mania for dining on its covered piazza, and so there was usually reserved for the young beauty and her rough and rugged escort his favorite corner-seat, whence they could see the noble river losing itself in the haze northward.

On one of these trips, as they drove slowly past the new mansion, Eunice was sure she saw Wilfrid walking away with hasty strides, his back towards them.

"Poor fellow!" she sighed. "How he must miss it all! What a dreadful change for him to go back to the life he always hated so!"

For by dint of careful inquiries she had found out that Stennis had applied to his old firm, and was again doing desk work drudgery from nine to five at $18 a week.

Perhaps—for who may fathom the heart of a maid?—it was the knowledge of this that kept her in town all that summer. She often talked of going away somewhere, discussing the merits of several places of which she heard—the Berkshires, the Hamptons, and even Newport—but John Trevecca seemed very hard to move just then.

"Bide a bit, lassie," he would say. "There's a mort o' time ahead o' ee. Who'll see ta th' iron-work round th' new hoose if I'm away?"

Eunice laughed good-humoredly. "Oh, well," she agreed, "if you are quite comfortable I am content to stay in town, dear. There is plenty of leisure before us, as you say. We must go somewhere this winter, though, or I shall be having you on my hands again with that dreadful asthma. What do you say to going to Bermuda to escape the damp and the cold?"

"Any place so's there's plenty o' warm sunshine," he would answer, and she let him off for the present with that understanding.

So the torrid months of July and August slipped by, and September came in with the Dog star dying hard. Despite the heat, they really were very comfortable in their new abode high up in one of the great apartment hotels overlooking the park. Eunice had never appeared lovelier. All her good points were enhanced by the pretty toilets in which she felt she could now indulge, and with feminine quickness she soon adapted herself and her personal adornments to her new circumstances. Of one thing she was secretly very glad: Wilfrid's beautiful ring, which had been often out of place in the latitude of Macdougall street, now never left her finger—a trifling fact which did not escape the keen scrutiny of old John Trevecca. But never a word said he.

One evening, after a scorching hot day, when all the city to the southward lay shrouded in a steaming haze of heat, Eunice and her father, having just finished dinner, were sitting at the open window in the fast-deepening twilight, the old man puffing at a great meerschaum pipe which had been one of Wilf's earliest gifts in his opulent days.

"A gentleman to see Mr. Trevecca," announced the voice of a maid-servant out of the dusk of the inner room.

"Who do you suppose it can be?" said Eunice, switching on the lights. "Did the gentleman give any name?" she inquired.

"No, ma'am; he said he wanted to see Mr. Trevecca personally," was the reply.

Old John rose heavily out of his spacious chair and went shuffling into the reception-room, closing the door behind him. A young man rose upon his entrance, saying:

"My name's Matthews, Mr. Trevecca. I've looked you up because there's a friend of mine who I fancy is a friend of yours also, and who needs some attention—Wilfrid Stennis."

"Eh, lad 'ee don't say so!" rumbled the old fellow. "An' what do 'ee say's th' matter w' th' lad?"

"Well, sir, as far as I can make out he's all gone to pieces—pegged out—down on his luck, y' know," was the jerky answer.

Old Trevecca nodded and smoked furiously, as was his wont when inwardly excited.

"He rooms across the hall from me—same room's he had before he came into all that money. Been working pretty hard all summer—no vacation, y' know—and I guess he's about tuckered out. Little off his head when I got home tonight. Kept mumbling a lot of rubbish, but I caught on to your name. Remembered he used to know you, and so I came up here. Beastly boarding-house—people don't care—no place for a sick man, y' know. Ought to have a doctor or a nurse, I guess!"

During this speech old John was a study. His huge bulk heaved and swelled, his eyes flashed fire from under their bushy thatches, and he fairly belched smoke.

"Eh, lad!" he rumbled, gripping the hand of young Stanley Matthews and nearly dragging him off his feet, "y' coom ta th' reet shop, y' did! Ah've got summun in there as'll be both doctor and nuss to poor Wilf. Be y' goin' reet back? Yes? Then we'll be w' y' in th' twinklin' o' a bedpost! Bide ye there!"

He fairly trotted into the room where he had left Eunice.

"Pit an' y' things, lassie!" he cried, struggling out of his detested fashionable lounging-jacket and into a street-coat, and jamming the soft felt wide-awake, to which he still clung, on his grizzled head, "I want 'ee ta coom w' me this minute!"

Eunice's maid at a signal fetched her hat and gloves, and in five minutes they were out on Columbus avenue and boarding a passing car. The introduction to Matthews was accomplished in this wise:

"This is th' nuss an' th' doctor I was tellin' 'ee of, Mr. Matthews—my daughter, Miss Trevecca," accompanied by a mighty jab of the elbow that nearly knocked the breath out of the astonished Stanley.

They alighted at the corner of Waverley place and Broadway and walked through to Washington square. It was many weeks since Eunice had been in the neighborhood, and she looked curiously at the once familiar scenes, and sniffed the heavy and fetid air with something of disgust.

Matthews led the way up the stoop of one of the old-fashioned houses on the south side of the square, which was filled with boarders of both sexes taking the air, who looked wonderingly at the daintily dressed Eunice as they made way for the trio.

"If you'll wait here," said Stanley, showing them into the boarding-house parlor, "I'll just run up and see if he's fit to receive company."

"I'll go w' 'ee, lad," said Trevecca. "Bide here a bit, girlie."

Left alone, her heart in a tremor, for all she had been able to elicit from her father on the way down was the admission that Wilfrid was ill and needed looking after, the girl was a prey to emotions which there was no time to analyze, for in a very few minutes old John appeared at the door again and beckoned her silently. He led the way up the wide, uncarpeted stairs, pausing a moment outside the room to say, in a rumbling whisper:

"He's in there, lassie, an' he needs 'ee badly." Then he opened the door and gently pushed her in. As he looked back for one instant he saw Eunice on her knees by the bedside, with Wilfrid's head in her arms. Then he closed the door gently and waited, confident of the result.

"They've both been tried in th' crucible, but th' fire hasn't hurt them!" he muttered in his native brogue.

CHAPTER XII.

Upon the sheltered deck of a south-bound steamer a month later stood two figures, Wilfrid Stennis and Eunice, his wife. They had been married that morning. John Trevecca was also on board, but in the smoking-room, out of the night air.

The Highland lights on Navesink were flashing like twin-stars against a pale streak of clear autumn sunset which threw into relief the rounded hills of Staten Island.

His arm was around her waist, and her head was pillowed on his shoulder, careless of any chance beholders. Two sentences are all we need to overhear of their murmured conversation:

"Eunice means 'happy victory,' you know," the girl was saying. "It has certainly proved so for us. Don't you think so, Wilf?"

He pressed her closer to him for answer, and then with his free hand he pointed to the dying day, saying:

"At evening time it shall be light!"

THE END.

Founding of Khartum.

Khartum is not yet a century old and it owes its existence to an oriental form of treachery. When Khe-dive Mohammed Ali invaded the Sudan in 1820 he marched triumphantly to Shendi, where his troops were entertained at a banquet by the submissive natives. But while the khedive's high officials were seated at the feast they shared the fate of the viands and were themselves reduced to funeral baked meats. Full of fury the army fell on Shendi and demolished it. Marching south, the invaders reached the junction of the Blue Nile and White Nile. With the conqueror's instinct they recognized that the strip of land, with its few fisherman's huts, of straw formed ideal strategic headquarters. So Khartum finally grew into the most sensitive part of the Sudan organism.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Chinese Take to Smoking Cigarettes

WASHINGTON. — America has taught the people of the Chinese empire to smoke cigarettes. In a report to this government on foreign trade by Consul General Charles Denby of Vienna, in which he described the class of foreign markets which may be created by American enterprise, and then supplied the consul general says:

"One of the most conspicuous examples of such a market is the demand for cigarettes in China. Ten years ago the cigarette was an article used in China by a small number of people, chiefly foreigners. The field attracted the attention of a group of American manufacturers who examined into it and decided to introduce the cigarette to the Chinese people by American methods. The result is that now the cigarette is popular throughout the empire."

The international opium conference to be held at The Hague next fall will have a very general representation of the powers, according to the latest information reaching the state department.

In reporting to this government on opportunities in Malaysia for rubber-growing enterprises, Consul General James T. Dubois at Singapore, cited as follows an instance to show how the investing public is sometimes taken in in the exploitation of the rubber industry there:

"An estate was sold to promoters for $150,000. The syndicate got an old planter who knew the estate to put a flotation value on it. He named $250,000. The promoters were not satisfied. Another expert examined and reported. His price was $350,000.

British and American gold was pouring into the country and the get-rich-quick spirit was born. Another expert was called in. He was told of the former valuations and that they were unsatisfactory. He valued the estate at $500,000.

Just at this time, rubber took a big jump in the London and New York markets and another expert was asked to report and he placed the flotation price at $750,000 and the syndicate in order to have it in round numbers made it an even $800,000 and floated it at this price.

People fought for the stock, the share issue was oversubscribed and many of them immediately sold at a good advance. All this was done within a few months without the slightest improvement on the property except the natural growth of the few hundred acres of Para plants which had recently been planted.

Trained white supervisors on the rubber estates are in demand, the consul general reports, and there is a scarcity of labor and consequent high wages.

Heads of Navy Are Annoyed By Women

JOHN HAY had a saying that the ideal diplomatic service—if any government ever succeeds in having one—will be composed exclusively of unmarried men. Mr. Hay had no experience in naval matters, or he might have included the navy in his maxim.

There probably is no branch of the government service, the Washington Post says, where petticoat influence is so strong as in the navy. Ask any ex-secretary of the navy about it and he will tell you how the navy women in a thousand different ways, sometimes unconsciously and occasionally deliberately, annoy the navy department. He will tell you how they scheme to obtain desirable posts of duty for their husbands or sons and how they annoy the department with requests for a change of orders when their husbands are transferred from an easy job in Washington to sea duty on the Asiatic station or some other far-away tropical post. The recent row at the Boston navy yard, which culminated in the court-martial of two officers, illustrates the prominent part women play in navy circles.

Almost everybody knows of the mutual ill feeling existing between the navy women and the department. Every once in a while something happens to widen this breach. Only a few days ago Ensign Charles M. Austin, son of Representative Richard W. Austin of Tennessee, was deprived of an especially desirable berth by the navy department merely because he got married. He had been detached from the dispatch boat Dolphin at the Washington navy yard and ordered to Japan for duty as a student attaché at the American embassy at Tokyo for the purpose of studying the Japanese language. On the way to his new post of duty he stopped at his former home in Tennessee and was married to a girl he had known for many years.

This was too much for the unromantic departmental authorities, who suddenly decided that a married ensign would not make as good a student of the Japanese language as a bachelor. Accordingly his orders were revoked and instead of spending his honeymoon in Tokyo he will have less interesting service at the naval training station on the Pacific coast. He will, however, have his wife.

Girl's Good Looks Are a Bar to Work

AFTER losing four positions within a year just because of her beauty, Mary Todd has left Washington and will try her fortune elsewhere. Miss Todd set out to be a stenographer. Her employer got mixed up in his dictation and included phrases that could not have been part of the correspondence. As a shopgirl the floorwalkers strolled too often near her counter. As a milliner she aroused the envy and jealousy of customers.

Miss Todd has been living in Georgetown for a little more than a year. She came here from a small Pennsylvania town, well equipped to work, with money enough to wait until a reasonably good position was open to her.

"Yes," she said, half-angry and half-amused, "I have been overwhelmed with offers of marriage as well as of employment. But these offers do not appeal to me. Most men forget that I have my own sweetheart, and if I were inclined to consider a second time it seems that mine should be the privilege of inviting his attentions without having them thrust upon me."

"At first I did not take such things seriously, but since then I have known other girls who have shared the same fate, merely because they are more beautiful than their colleagues."

"I have worked in offices where there were 17 girls, and by the end of the third week I was embarrassed by repeated offers of company, pleasures and the like by various men in the office. This gave rise to some bitter passes between some of the other girls and myself."

"I hope to be married by the autumn of next year, but until then I wish to do something."

"Do you remember where they stung us ten cents for beer on the pavilion at Brighton, where we sat at a table and looked at the ocean?" he asked. "Well, when you all went away I walked around to the bar and got one for five. A shame to charge you five cents more just to sit down and look at the ocean, isn't it?"

"Oh, I don't know," she said. "I'd rather pay the extra five than have to stand by the bar and look at the bartender if he was anything like some I have seen."—New York Press.

A doctor relates the following story: "I had a patient who was very ill and who ought to have gone to a warmer climate, so I resolved to try what hypnotism would do for him. I had a large sun painted on the ceiling of his room and by suggestion induced him to think it was the sun which would cure him. The ruse succeeded and he was getting better rapidly when one day on my arrival I found he was dead."

"Did it fall, after all, then?" asked one of the doctor's hearers.

"No," replied the doctor, "he died of sunstroke."

Quainted.

A prominent western attorney tells of a boy who once applied at his office for work.

"This boy was bright looking and I rather took to him."

"Now, my son," I said, "if you come to work for me you will occasionally have to write telegrams and take down telephone messages. Hence a pretty high degree of schooling is essential. Are you fairly well educated?"

"The boy smiled confidently."

"I be," he said.—Independent.

Finding Fighters for Uncle Sam

BY EDWARD B. CLARK
COPYRIGHT BY W.A. PATTERSON

THE war department is trying to find ways and means to increase the number of cadets at the United States Military academy. Since the Spanish war, when the army was enlarged, there have not been anywhere near enough graduates to fill the vacancies in the commissioned ranks of the army. The result has been that not only has it been necessary to promote to the rank of second lieutenant, enlisted men of the army who can pass the required examination, but to appoint each year to the service large numbers of civilians.

Naturally enough the war department officials feel that the commissioned officers should be men educated to the profession of a soldier. There seems to be a pretty general feeling, one hard for the authorities to account for by the way, that every man is born a soldier and that the military profession is the only one for which no special training is required. Gen. Winfield Scott, at the close of the Mexican war, said that if it had not been for the officers of his army who were graduates of the military academy the war would have been prolonged for years. This praise of the institution and the men whom it turns out was given by a man not a graduate, and who, therefore, could not be said to be prejudiced in favor of the institution. The course at West Point is a particularly hard one and a good many cadets are found deficient every year, generally in only one study. West Point, however, differs from all other schools of the world. There they do not strike an average of studies, taking all the lessons taught in a lump. For instance, if a man stands at the head of his class in four studies, but is a little bit below the proficient average in one study, the authorities throw him out, whereas in other schools they would strike an average and give such a man a high standing.

The result of such a system as this is that men who are qualified for the service in practically every way, but who may be a little lame in French or a trifle off in geology or chemistry, are separated from the army to which they might possibly be a credit if an average of excellence was struck by the authorities.

It is quite often the case that men who do not graduate but who have had several years' training at the academy succeed in getting commissions in the service. There are no records to show that any man who spent two years at West Point failed to pass his examination for a commission after he had been successful in getting an appointment to the army from civil life.

Some of the boys who have been at West Point, but have not graduated, enlisted in the United States army in order to get their commission from the ranks. When a man does so enlist he may be sent as a private soldier to a company in which some classmate is a lieutenant. Now it must be remembered that there is a deep gulf between officers and enlisted men in the regular army, a gulf which it is necessary to have remain fixed, because familiarity of intercourse between officers and enlisted men would lead to lax discipline. It is not the case, as some people seem to think, of an officer being too proud to associate with enlisted men. The officers of the army hold the enlisted men in high esteem. They know that they are the backbone of the army and they know that on their loyalty, obedience and courage hangs success in war and the credit of the army in peace. Every army in the world has learned the lesson that there must be a lack of familiar intercourse in a social way between the commissioned officers and the enlisted men.

When a young fellow who has been at West Point enlists he is likely, as has been said, to get into a command in which one of his classmates may be an officer. Then it is that a curious relation results. The enlisted man meets his former classmate, whom he once called Bill or Jim and with whom he possibly roomed as a cadet, and he must simply salute him as any other enlisted man would, and pass without a sign of "familiar recognition." Now this does not mean at all that Jim or Bill does not want to speak to his former classmate. It means simply that the enlisted man wants to preserve his own standing with his fellow soldiers and does not want to put his former classmate by and chance in an embarrassing position. If the enlisted man should learn that their newly enlisted fellow was a former classmate and a friend of one of the officers they might think that it was going to be a case of currying favor on the one side or of showing favor on the other. The man who is once a cadet and who enlists is more careful if he is built right, and he generally is, to maintain a proper attitude toward the men who rank him.

They tell a story in Washington of a young fellow who came of rich parentage, but who never had been at West Point, by the way, who enlisted in the army to get his commission. He attempted to presume on the fact of his wealth and he not only got the officers down on him, but the men as well. His lot was not altogether a happy one. It can be said, however, that cases like that of this young man are few and far between. The man who is willing to enlist in order to get his commission, generally speaking, is of good stuff enough to make him willing to take things as they come and to take rather more than his share of the duties and the hardships of the enlisted men with whom he is thrown. There was once upon a time a cadet who, having spent time enough at the United States Military academy to cover a considerable part of the course, was compelled by the government, to sever his connection with the school he had hoped would prove to him a fostering mother until the end.

This cadet, who shall be nameless because of a modest desire to avoid the use of the pronoun in the first person, had a yearning for military life, and so a few years after leaving the academy he walked into a Boston recruiting office and enlisted. Several classmates and several other army friends knew of the enlistment and told the enlisted one prior to his application for admission to the service to strike out for a commission, and, above all things, not to let any of the enlisted men, or any of the officers who did not know him, have knowledge of the fact that he had been at the military academy, for otherwise they might think he expected favors.

The advice was needless, for whatever else the recruit intended to do he desired that his service should be performed on the same level with that of every other man in the United States army, but the truth is that this determination and its carrying out led to some complications that had humor enough at the time even though they lose the humor because of lack of power in the story-teller.

This cadet recruit was landed at David's Island, New York harbor, where there were 700 other recruits undergoing instruction, and a green lot they were. The cadet was turned out for squad drill with five other recruits, not one of whom knew enough about soldiering to keep his heels together. A tall, raw-boned Irish sergeant with the euphonious name of O'Baldwin was in command of the squad. He began to explain the position of a soldier. He found that the recruit on the right of the line already was in the position of a soldier. The truth was he couldn't help himself.

O'Baldwin eyed him critically. "Fall out!" he said.

The one-time cadet fell out. "What regiment did ye desert from?" said O'Baldwin, pleasantly.

"This is my first enlistment," answered the recruit, and in answering he told the truth, for a cadet isn't enlisted.

"What company are ye in?" asked O'Baldwin, though he knew perfectly well, for his own bunk was not three bunks removed from that of the recruit.

"D company," answered the queried one, and that's where he made the mistake of his life.

That apparently simple answer proved conclusively to the sergeant's mind that he had an ex-regular before him, for all the national guardsmen would have answered "Company D" instead of "D company." The regular who would speak of his command as "Company D" would be considered deserving of the guard-house for a month, for to put the letter after the company save when it is written is to the army man the height of things unmilitary.

"You go to your quarters; we'll look into this," said the sergeant.

The recruit went to his quarters and half an hour later the first sergeant of the outfit sent for him. The "Top" opened the conversation cheerfully with a query as to what regiment the recruit had left in the lurch. Finding that he was bound to be considered a deserter, the unhappy one took the bull by the horns thus: "I am serving my first enlistment in the army; I never was in the marine corps and I never saw the inside of a national guard armory."

"Ever been in one of them private military schools?" asked the "Top."

"Never."

"Go to your quarters."

In another hour the recruit was given a rifle and cartridge box and belt and was ordered to turn out with the squad of recruits who had advanced far enough in the school of the soldier to receive lessons in the manual of arms. Now as a matter of fact the recruit knew the manual of arms so well he couldn't have hidden his knowledge if he had tried. This time there was another sergeant in charge. His eye took in the way the recruit on the right handled his piece and executed the manual.

In less than a minute the sergeant ordered him who was showing such proficiency to step to the front, and ordered "place rest" for the remainder of the squad. Then turning his attention to his victim, he said: "We'll try the bayonet exercise a bit. Guard!"

The recruit came down to "a guard" possibly with as much precision and in probably as proper style as the veteran sergeant had ever seen it done.

"Passing yourself off for a recruit. It's a fraud you are. Get to your quarters." And the recruit went to his bunk again, knowing that he was in deep disgrace.

About half an hour later he heard two old soldiers talking outside of the barracks window. One of them said to the other: "There's a cuss in there who ain't never been in the marine corps, nor in the millshy, nor in the reg'lars, nor to one of them military schools. The sergeant says he's either a blankety-blank liar or else he learnt his soldierin' from books, which ain't likely."

That night just after "tattoo," the first sergeant appeared and told the recruit that the company commander wanted to see him at once in the orderly room. The recruit went to the presence of the commissioned officer and stood attention as he had stood attention as a cadet a thousand times before. The captain looked him up and down. "I understand," he said, "that this is your first enlistment; that you have never been a national guard; that you have never been a marine and that you never attended a private military school."

The recruit acquiesced with a respectful "Yes, sir."

"About face," the recruit made an about face, and then at a repetition of the command, again faced the captain, who was grinning.

"Go to your quarters," said the commanding officer.

The recruit went and in ten minutes the top sergeant was there, saying: "You can't fool the old man. You've been made a lance corporal and you go on guard as corporal of the third relief tomorrow morning."

There are a good many officers in the United States army today who served for a

Statue of Liberty Grafters

If the visitor's who paid good money to a soldier for the privilege of climbing up the steps of the statue of Liberty had only known about the sixty-second article of war they never would have graduated from the dead-end class on a reservation belonging to Uncle Sam, the New York Herald says. As it is, under the last general order from the war department two soldiers who levied tribute are doomed to penal servitude for their speculative enterprise.

According to the army orders, Axel T. Holm, a first-class private of G company, signal corps, and Edward A. Bagnall, of the same grade and command, organized a syndicate for the exploitation of the French evidence of friendship for America, which, following the actual language of the order, operated, as to Holm, after this fashion:

"He, the said Holm, did designedly and fraudulently obtain money from certain visitors to the statue of Liberty, fees for the privilege of going up into said statue, by knowingly making false pretenses that such fees were necessary."

And as to the enterprising Bagnall: "That he did knowingly assist in fraudulently obtaining money from visitors to the statue of Liberty by acting as a 'lookout' with the duty of actually giving warning to the man collecting the fees in case an officer were approaching."

All of this, according to the charges and specifications upon which conviction was made, and approval then passed, violated the sixty-second article of war. In the case of Holm the department orders his dishonorable discharge while at the military academy as cadets, but who were compelled to stay five years at the academy in order to get their commissions, having been "turned back" into the class next below them either for deficiency in studies or for breaches of discipline. If General Sheridan had not been given another chance after he had engaged in a little affair which was considered a breach of discipline while he was a cadet the wonder is who would have been the right-hand cavalry leader of Grant during the Civil war.

A few months ago Gen. Hamilton S. Hawkins died. He entered the military academy some time prior to the opening of the Civil war, but the authorities did not allow him to graduate. Hawkins was not discouraged by the failure and as soon as the Civil war broke out he offered his services to his country and was given a commission. He staid in the regular army until the time of his death and so strong was his love of the military academy that before his death he asked that he might be buried in the cadet cemetery. It was Hawkins' custom each year when he could get away from his command to visit the school where he had spent three years of his boyhood. He had just as strong a love for the institution as did any graduate in the army.

Recently there has been a disposition on the part of the graduates of the military academy to give more consideration to the men who spent some time at the school, but who did not graduate. One class organization includes in its membership all the cadets who at any time were members of the class, and no distinction is made between graduate and non-graduate, even the offices of the organization being open to men who did not complete the course.

Other class organizations are said to be preparing to follow, the example of that of the members of 1884 and if the custom of taking into full brotherhood the non-graduates becomes general the belief is that good will come to the academy and the country.

WANTS HER LETTER PUBLISHED

For Benefit of Women who Suffer from Female Ills

Minneapolis, Minn.—"I was a great sufferer from female troubles which caused a weakness and broken down condition of the system. I read so much of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for other suffering women I felt sure it would help me, and I must say it did help me wonderfully. My pains all left me, I grew stronger, and within three months I was a perfectly well woman."

"I want this letter made public to show the benefit women may derive from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. J. M. MORDAN, 2115 Second St., North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials like the above prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is made exclusively from roots and herbs.

Women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

If you want special advice write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. She will treat your letter as strictly confidential. For 20 years she has been helping sick women in this way, free of charge. Don't hesitate—write at once.

The Dentist's Joke.

At a recent dinner of the Authors' club in London to Mr. Owen Seaman, the editor of Punch, Mr. Walter Emanuel, another member of the staff of Punch, referred to the fact that the man with the largest sense of humor he had ever struck was an Englishman—a dentist. He went to him after suffering long with a toothache. He refused to have gas, and the dentist pulled out a tooth, leaving him writhing in pain, and took the tooth to the window, where he laughed quite heartily. He groaned, "What's the joke?" "Wrong tooth," said the dentist.

Yes, Indeed.

Hostess (at party)—Why, so silent, Miss De Muir? You've scarcely said a word since you came.

Hostess—But, my dear child, think what a stupid and tiresome thing society would be if everybody followed that advice!

He Knew the Kind.

Little Edward, aged four, was an only child. He was anxious for a baby sister, and was talking of it one day with a friend of the family. In the friend's family was a baby girl of one year. The lady said, "Edward, you may have my baby; she is pretty and sweet."

"Oh," said Edward, "I don't want an old baby. I want a brand new one with no noddin on but tatum powder."—Red Hen.

STREET TRAFFIC OF PARIS.

There are nearly half a million horses and motor vehicles of all kinds in Paris today, with 20,000 hand carts and 9,000 wheelbarrows. In 1909 65,370 accidents were caused in the Paris streets by 81,868 vehicles. These statistics are contained in a report drawn up by M. Emile Massard at the request of the Paris municipal council on the incumberment of the Paris streets. One of M. Massard's calculations shows that the street traffic of Paris, if stationary, would occupy 445 acres of the 2,079 acres of streets which Paris possesses. Last year 600,000,000 persons traveled by omnibus and tramway, and there were 294,000,000 passengers on the underground railway.—Indianapolis News.

A union man was beaten by a paid scab in Chicago the other day. It is a long lane that has no turn.

With the standpatters winning out in Ohio your Uncle Joe may not have wasted his time in Kansas.

President Taft knows how to enjoy his vacation even if some of the fellows who are working are hollering.

Where on earth is Senator Shelby Cullom? One would think he was running for office again; he is so quiet.

With Frank T. Fowler opposing our Gentleman George for the congressional nomination we may yet see the fur fly.

The legislative fight for the republican nomination grows hotter. Shurtleff and Stearns look like sure winners, however.

The Waukegan newspapers keep their news columns filled up and nothing doing at Zion City. That's enterprise for you.

The fact that Fowler has resigned his street commissionership job shows that he means to be our next Congressman, if he can.

There is a movement on foot to annex Waukegan to the big city. If it ever results it's a good bet that the tail will wag the dog.

Should Chicago devour Waukegan she will know there is something in her stomach when those politicians commence to kick.

With a milk famine coming on top of water what is a good prohibitionist going to do with nothing but the breweries still on the job?

It commences to look as if the day were past when everything was to be handed to the gentle Mr. Foes on a silver platter. There is a Fowler who seems to be coming his way with a gun.

When the Chicago Tribune attacks the Great Harvester Trust the farmers of this locality might think it cuts some figure, but the Tribune will not do it because the Harvester Trust owns the Tribune.

A jeweler in Highland Park has been offered $90,000 for a phonograph needle he has patented. At this rate, it would pay to keep on and patent a whole phonograph, Rockefeller couldn't afford to buy him out.

A Scandinavian has again been nominated by the Democrats for governor up in Minnesota. The Republicans have a man in of the same nationality. The Germans in Wisconsin don't seem to be one, two, three, and we thought they could go some.

And now the guileless, red-headed ex-statesman from Aurora has come in for a nerve shock. In other words Roger Sullivan says ex-Senator Hopkins bought seventeen democratic members of the legislature. Mr. Hopkins' shock, however, was that they wouldn't stay bought.

Those political candidates over in Waukegan are commencing to show signs of worry about what the western part of the county is going to do to some of them in September. At least, they are bear tracking it all over the neighborhood is the report that comes to this office.

If the Republican voters of the 8th district allows a second rate man like Vickers of Harvard to defeat a man of Shurtleff's political stature they ought to be sent back to the kindergarten. He is the one man who can save the taxpayers of the state $20,000,000 and beat Gov. Deneen's pipe dream, the waterways project.

The dairy interests are going to be vitally interested in the make up of the next legislature. A milk bill of state wide regulations is going to be put through and it is to be done either by their friends or the other fellows. We suggest to these dairymen that when going to the primaries they scan well the list of legislative candidates and see who is most likely to be effective at Springfield in tempering and making fair the conditions provided in this new law.

Lest We Forget

The primaries are now only a little over a month away. It is time every Republican should commence to size up the candidates on the county ticket. They are many and varied. They are asking the support of the electorate of party for countless reasons. Some of these candidates are good, some bad and some indifferent. Each may be plausible, each may give you a good spiel as to why you should honor him with your vote for the office he demands but refuse to be satisfied with hot air. Look up the records of the men, weigh their capabilities and try and figure out if they will be right if installed into the position.

The News is on this kind of a still hunt and it may be able to pick a few before the crucial test comes.

Stop and Think

Now that the September Primaries are only about six weeks distant and the annual crop of office seekers are making their usual trips about the county offering the glad hand to all, it behooves every voter in the county of Lake to stop a few moments before pledging himself to any individual and consider which of the candidates for the various offices is the most deserving of his support.

Take for instance the office of County Clerk, for which there are now three candidates in the field, H. M. Ferry, Miles T. Lamey and Lew A. Hendee, all well qualified gentlemen, any of whom would, if elected, fill the office with credit.

But stop to think. Is the latter named gentleman really entitled to the position?

Has it not been a "Hendee office" about long enough?

Is it not sufficient that Al Hendee himself should hold this office for years, term after term, with his son, the present aspirant for the place as deputy, without seeking at his own retirement to place his son in the position and thus keep it in the family?

And again, why should the voters of Lake County stand quietly by and watch this one office passed down from one generation to another, when there are other candidates for the position who are equally capable of handling the county's business, and would give to the public just as efficient service?

Again we ask you to stop and think.

A Word to the Thoughtful

The Republicans of Lake county are interested in selecting the best men for the legislature. They are only a part of the 8th district but they do not draw the line at the county frontier. If Boone or McHenry can show us something better than what we have got to offer over here in Lake we are not so hide-bound or narrow that we are not ready to support their candidate. We know that when elected he will be our representative as well as theirs and honor that comes to him is honor that comes to us all.

It is all very well for the Waukegan papers to set up a cry about Lake county taking care of her own and letting all the rest go to the bow wows but the News fails to see it in that light!

The state legislative question at this time is a much more important one than that of county lines. The issues that are coming up in the next session are much more important to us than our personal friendship for individual men. While we might wish and hope that all of the good Republicans of Lake county could be chosen for the state legislature yet if there is one man beyond the river in McHenry county who could accomplish more for us all in determining the results that are to be when the great issue comes up at Springfield, then we believe it is our duty to be for him.

That there is such a man beyond the river in McHenry we are sure.

That his name is Edward D. Shurtleff we are also sure.

This doesn't mean that we are to pass up the other legislative candidates, but it is just a hunch to those who are not going to vote for them that they can not do better than going over to McHenry and tying up to Mr. Shurtleff.

An Ordinance

An ordinance providing for the construction, operation and maintenance of gates at the intersection of streets and railway crossings in the village of Antioch, Lake County, Illinois, and providing a penalty for violation of the same.

Be it ordained by the board of trustees of the village of Antioch, Lake County, Illinois:

Section 1. All persons or corporations owning, leasing or operating any railroad, whose trains are propelled by steam, in or through the village of Antioch, shall construct, operate and maintain at the expense of said persons or corporations, at all points where the track or tracks of such persons or corporations shall cross or intersect any street in said village of Antioch, railway gates which shall provide proper protection against injury to persons or property at such crossings or intersections. Said gates shall be so maintained on each side of such tracks at said crossings or intersections, and shall open and close and be operated simultaneously.

Section 2. All railway gates herein provided for shall be so operated as to protect all persons and conveyances crossing said track or tracks at the crossings or intersections aforesaid from injury or danger from locomotives or cars so operated by such persons or corporations, with the least inconvenience possible to persons so crossing such track or tracks as aforesaid.

Section 3. The gates provided for in this ordinance shall be of a kind to be approved by the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Antioch.

Section 4. Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be liable to a fine of not less than twenty-five ($25) dollars, nor more than two hundred ($200) dollars for each offense.

Section 5. The penalty mentioned in this ordinance shall be enforced in any court of competent jurisdiction, or the fine mentioned may be sued for and recovered before the Police Magistrate of said Village or any Justice of the Peace in Lake County, in the name of the Village of Antioch in an action of debt.

Section 6. All ordinances or parts of ordinances in conflict herewith, are hereby repealed.

Section 7. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval and publication.

Approved

ARREST DR. CRIPPEN

ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER AND HIS STENOGRAPHER ARE IN CUSTODY.

TAKEN ON BOARD MONTROSE

Suspect Turns Deathly Pale While Female Companion Collapses When Arrested by Officers Disguised as Pilots—Taken to Quebec.

Montreal, Que.—After being fully identified by Inspector Dew of Scotland Yard, Doctor Crippen, who is charged with the slaying of his wife, known on the stage in London as Belle Elmore, was Sunday placed under arrest by Chief McCarthy of the Quebec provincial police, assisted by Chief Davis of the Dominion police on board the steamer Montrose at Father Point.

Two minutes after, Ethel Leneve, the stenographer, with the suspect, whom Crippen had long been infatuated with, was put under arrest in her cabin, still wearing the clothes of a boy.

Inspector Dew continued on his way to Quebec with his prisoners. There they will be arraigned before Judge Panet Angers, the purpose being to deport them to London. It is likely that Inspector Dew will board the Royal George for the return trip with his prisoners on Thursday.

Inspector Dew, with Chief McCarthy and ex-Chief Deplis, all three disguised as pilots, went off to the steamship in a lifeboat rowed by four sailors. Crippen was smiling and promenading the deck with Miss Leneve and Doctor Stuart, the ship's doctor. He asked the doctor why so many pilots should come, to which Doctor Stuart replied they were probably returning to their homes, being out of turn.

The supposed pilots walked along until they passed where Crippen and his paramour were with Doctor Stuart. As Inspector Dew got a good look at Crippen and Miss Leneve he gave the preconcerted signal and the constables made the arrest and brought the couple down to their own stateroom, where they are now confined with Inspector Dew.

Only 15 minutes elapsed from the time the constables went aboard until the arrests were effected. Crippen turned the color of death and his voice gurgled some unintelligible sound as he was hurried below. Miss Leneve became hysterical and collapsed.

DIE ON TEXAS RACE RIOT

Eighteen Blacks and Three Whites Are Killed in Pitched Battle
Near Slocum.

Palestine, Tex.—Following a pitched battle between the negro farmers of this section in which at least 300 blacks took part and three companies of state militia from Houston and Galveston and a detachment of state rangers fought for hours and, it is said, that 18 negroes have been killed and the bodies of three white men are lying in an improvised morgue in the little town awaiting the arrival of undertakers from Houston.

Beginning Friday afternoon the race riot between the negroes and whites waged continuously until Sunday night.

The rioting began near the village of Slocum. Several reasons are assigned as the cause of the racial feeling. First, the refusal of a negro to pay an obligation for which a white farmer stood sponsor.

Later came reports of secret meetings among the negroes and an alleged confession of a negro that the murder of the man in question, James Spurger, and his family was planned. The situation reached a climax, however, when a negro was discovered advancing on Spurger from the rear, armed with a shotgun. He was trailed for some distance and shot by a posse when he refused to surrender. With the shooting of the negro the rioting began.

PRESIDENT BACK AT BEVERLY

TAFT CONGRATULATES HARDING ON HIS NOMINATION.

Sends Message to Ohio's Nominee and Expresses Satisfaction With Platform Adopted.

Beverly, Mass.—President Taft sent the following dispatch to Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for governor of Ohio:

"I sincerely congratulate you on your nomination and earnestly hope that you will be elected."

"WILLIAM H. TAFT."

The president is fully satisfied with the Ohio platform. He applied himself to a reading of it as soon as he got back to Beverly. The dispatch of the telegram to Harding followed.

With a couple of days now in which to rest up from his vacation, the president will be ready to buckle down to a heap of work which Secretary Norton says is stacked up for him. That there is to be plenty doing here at the summer capitol from now on is evidenced by the fact that another recruit to the clerical force has arrived from Washington. Two came in, in fact, while the president was absent in Maine.

Columbus, O.—By a fusion of the Garfield and administration delegates, the Republican convention Thursday nominated Warren G. Harding, former lieutenant governor, for governor on the third ballot, after James R. Garfield and Carl A. Thompson had withdrawn.

F. W. Treadway of Cleveland was renominated for lieutenant governor; Granville W. Mooney for secretary of state.

Despite the efforts of Senator Burton's Cuyahoga county delegation to stampede the convention for Nicholas Longworth, and George B. Cox's every effort in behalf of Judge O. B. Brown, the Dayton man, the combination of the "progressives" with the national administration men broke up the fight on the third ballot. Then Cox, yielding to the inevitable, cast the 91 Hamilton votes for Harding, and that finished it.

The platform which it is expected will be a model for future Republican conventions, was adopted almost unanimously, there being but a few scattered "noes."

KEYSTONE PARTY IS FORMED

Ticket Will Oppose Nominees of Both Democrats and Republicans in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia.—The Keystone party was formed here to oppose the nominees of both the Republican and Democratic parties in Pennsylvania. The convention, composed of 117 delegates from 52 counties, denounced both the old parties as being under the domination of the liquor interests, but refused to incorporate in its platform any reference to former President Roosevelt, who was proclaimed by some of the delegates "the greatest American citizen."

William H. Berry, the nominee for governor, was formerly state treasurer, to which office he was elected by the combined Democratic, Prohibition and Independent votes in the political upheaval of 1905. While in office he uncovered the state capitol scandal.

ALDRICH SAYS BRISTOW LIES

Rhode Island Senator for First Time Hits Back at the Insurgents.

Providence, R. I.—For the first time since he has been under bombardment by Bristow of Kansas and other insurgent senators, Nelson W. Aldrich hit back.

"That man Bristow is telling a pack of lies on me," he said. "He has told so many lies—he manufactured them so rapidly—that I wouldn't know where to begin should I take notice of him and enter denials."

"If the charges had been made upon the floor of the senate the case might be different," was suggested.

With a sardonic smile that ran into a chuckle the Rhode Island senator responded:

"Yes—yes, you notice they don't talk about me that way on the floor of the senate."

TRAIN HITS AUTO; THREE DIE

Two Women Instantly Killed, Husbands Hurt, One Fatally Near Etna Green, Ind.

Warsaw, Ind.—Mrs. Melville Brooks and Mrs. C. H. Thorling were killed instantly and Mr. Brooks fatally hurt, a mile east of Etna Green, when a fast Pennsylvania freight train, east-bound, struck the automobile in which they were riding. Mr. Brooks died later in the day. Mr. Thorling was severely, but not dangerously hurt. The Brooks resided in Lima, O., and the Thorlings in St. Mary's, O. They had been making an automobile tour and were on their way home.

HINT SUICIDE IN RAWN CASE

VERDICT, DECLARES RAILWAY MAN WAS SELF-SLAIN.

Jury's Open Finding May Make It
Necessary for Heirs to Bring Suit to Obtain Accident and Life Insurance.

Chicago.—Ira G. Rawn killed himself, according to the verdict returned by the coroner's jury Friday. The Monon president was shot with his own revolver, held in his own hand, the verdict reads, but whether accidentally or with suicidal intent is not specified. The jury said the former explanation was the less probable. The finding of the jurors is described as "an open suicide verdict."

The verdict was reached after a three hours' session and after much lively debate in the jury room.

Although none of the jurors would talk about their action, it was said that three held out for a verdict of suicide and the others for one of accidental shooting, and that the open verdict returned was a compromise, to break the deadlock.

That the insurance companies will contest the payment of policies is said to be assured, and it is declared that relatives of the slain railroad president will bring court proceedings to collect the insurance.

No representative of the Rawn family was present when the jury's findings were made public.

The general consensus of opinion among those present at the close of the inquest was that the jury had taken the only course open to it.

JOHN G. CARLISLE IS DEAD

Former Secretary of Treasury Succumbs to Heart Failure Accompanied by Oedema of Lungs.

New York, Aug. 1.—John G. Carlisle, secretary of the treasury in President Cleveland's cabinet, who had been critically ill for the past two days, died at his apartments in New York last night of heart failure, accompanied by oedema of the lungs.

The family was at his bedside at the end.

John Griffin Carlisle was born in Campbell county, Kentucky, September 5, 1835, and after a common school education was admitted to the Kentucky bar in 1858. His wife was Mary Jane Gordon. He served several terms in the Kentucky legislature, was state senator in 1866-71, and was delegate-at-large to the Democratic convention in 1868.

In 1871-5 he was elected lieutenant governor and was sent to congress in 1877, being speaker from 1883 to 1889. He was a United States senator from Kentucky in 1890-3 and secretary of the treasury in 1893-7.

Since 1897 he practised law in New York and was vice-president of the Anti-Imperialistic league of Boston.

SPAIN'S THRONE IN PERIL

State-Wide Revolution as Result of Vatican's Ultimatum Looked For at Any Time.

Madrid.—State-wide revolution is expected to break out at any moment as the result of the ultimatum from the Vatican declaring that no negotiations toward the revision of the concordat will be considered until all other matters in dispute are cleared up.

It is feared that both Carlists and Republicans will take advantage of the ferment and attempt to oust King Alfonso. Every preparation has been made to meet any uprising. The entire civil guard, Spain's wonderful military police, is held under arms ready for any emergency. Ominous reports are received following the publication of the news that a rupture between the Spanish government and the Vatican appears imminent.

At San Sebastian, Don Jaime, the pretender, has issued a manifesto in which he says that he will lead the Carlists in the battle which he intimates may be coming soon.

SAYS CHIEFS SPLIT LOOT

Former Car Inspector of Illinois Central Road Testifies in $1,500,000 Fraud Case.

Chicago.—"High officials of the Illinois Central railroad, who were interested in car-repairing plants, entered into an agreement among themselves to divide profits grafted from the railroad. These profits amounted to as high as 40 per cent. of the total amount paid by the railroad company."

That is the charge made on the witness stand Thursday by Harold A. Sims, in his testimony concerning the grafting from the Illinois Central railroad. His testimony was given before Master in Chancery Mason, in the suit of the railroad to recover $300,000 from the Memphis Car company. Although he was on the "inside" and knew in detail the method used to rob the railroad, Sims says that he realized only $750 for his share in the work.

Illinois Central lumber was used to repair Illinois Central cars, and then the road was charged for the lumber, was another of his charges.

Cars loaded with material were shipped to the Memphis Car Repair company and it was the practise to charge for repairs made on the cars whether they were made or not, the witness said, and more often they were not.

STRIKE AFFECTS 28,000 MEN

Chicago Trades Council Calls Out All Building Workmen Except Carpenters—37 Structures Affected.

Chicago.—A general strike of building trades was decided upon at a conference of thirty-seven unions Thursday, which met in a final effort to obtain a settlement with the Otis Elevator company.

It is said the strike order will affect 28,000 men. The only union not affected by the order is that of the carpenters.

The cause of the strike is the refusal of the Otis Elevator company to remove machinists from elevator construction work, the American Federation of Labor having held this line of work to belong strictly to elevator constructors.

It is said the company has contracts on thirty-seven buildings, now in the course of construction here, and that work will be stopped on all of them.

Following the strike order, business agents representing their respective unions hurried to buildings in which the Otis company has contracts for elevator construction, for the purpose of notifying the men of the decision taken at the conference.

ADOPT LOCAL OPTION PLANK

Iowa Democratic Convention Denounces Tariff Bill as "Masterpiece of Injustice."

Ottumwa, Ia.—After a bitter wrangle in the resolutions committee, the Democratic state convention Thursday adopted a local option plank, thereby putting the liquor question which has been a thorn in the flesh of both parties for years, squarely up to the people.

Jerry B. Sullivan of Des Moines, former candidate for governor, acted as temporary chairman, and scored Theodore Roosevelt unmercifully in his speech.

The platform adopted denounces the tariff bill as a "masterpiece of injustice involving remorseless exactions from the many to enrich the few."

The nomination of Claude R. Porter for governor was ratified.

MANIAC RUNS AMUCK

SLAYS THREE IN FIT OF REVENGE
AND ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

TWO OTHERS ARE WOUNDED

Discharged San Diego Fireman Turns in False Alarm, Shoots Three Former Companions, Kills
Wife and Child.

San Diego, Cal.—After killing three persons, including his wife and child, mortally wounding a fourth and severely wounding a fifth, Bert S. Durham, a discharged driver of the local fire department, ended a man hunt Monday by shooting himself through the head.

Durham, in a desire for revenge, turned in a false alarm and when his former fellow workmen responded he fired a volley of shots at them, killing one and probably fatally injuring two others.

Durham then ran to his home and with a piece of steel wrapped in a handkerchief beat his wife and baby about their heads as they lay asleep, killing both.

Durham, who had been hunted relentlessly for hours, dodged his pursuers, leaving them without a clue, boarded a car in the residence section and rode quickly to the plaza in the center of the business district, where he put a bullet into his brain. He recovered consciousness later, but the coroner says he will die.

Durham's victims were:
Donald F. Grant, engineer engine company No. 3, San Diego fire department.

Mrs. Bert S. Durham and child.
Peter Sampsell, captain hose company, dying.

Guy Elliott, driver hose company, may recover.

At the first shot Grant fell from his seat to the ground dead, with a bullet in his head. At the second shot Elliott pitched to the ground with a bullet through the stomach. Durham then leveled his revolver at Captain Sampsell and fired twice, both bullets piercing Sampsell's lungs.

Two more shots, fired at other members of the crew, went wild, after which Durham drew another revolver and with it covered his retreat as he started to run from Assistant Chief Snedecor, who had driven up in answer to the alarm. As he disappeared in the darkness Durham shouted back to the assistant chief: "Tell my wife I am going to kill myself."

CRIPPEN WILL NOT FIGHT

Doctor is Formally Arraigned and Informs Court He Will Not Combat Extradition.

Quebec.—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen, trembling and on the verge of a collapse, with his voice so weak it scarcely could be heard by Magistrate Angers, announced in court Monday that he would not make a fight against extradition to London.

This statement followed his formal arraignment in the provincial court on the charge of slaying "an unknown woman," the police believe to be his missing wife, Belle Elmore, the American actress.

Crippen's hearing, at the suggestion of Inspector Dew, was continued 15 days, and, at the expiration of that time, unless he decides to fight extradition, he will be sent back to England. Crippen's companion in flight, Miss Ethel Clare Leneve, was to have been arraigned with the American, but her custodians reported to the court that she was too ill to appear. The authorities are confident that the woman will give no more trouble than Crippen promises to.

Miss Leneve was transferred from the provincial jail to a hospital. The girl scarcely has been able to stand since her collapse when she was taken into custody. Her condition has excited much sympathy.

ROYAL COUPLE FLEE SPAIN

King Alfonso and Queen Victoria
Start for England Because of Enmity of Clericals.

San Sebastian, Spain.—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria have fled the country. The young king, dismayed at the bitter enmity shown towards his queen by the clericals, suddenly left Monday with her for England.

The royal couple will stop in Paris on their way to England and have a conference with President Fallieres. Much significance is attached to this, as France has done to the church what Spain, in a lesser degree, now is attempting. When he has established Victoria safely at the court of King George, the king will return to Spain. It is said, going direct to Madrid. There he will take full charge of the tangled situation growing out of the government's defiance of the church.

ANNUAL LOSS IS ENORMOUS

Two Hundred Million Dollars a Year
Might Be Added to Wealth of Country.

Computing that there are in the United States at least 300,000 indigent consumptives who should be cared for in charitable or semi-charitable sanatoria and hospitals, the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis estimates that the annual cost to the country for the treatment of these persons would be $50,000,000 at the rate of $1.669 per day per patient. At the lowest possible estimate the country loses $200,000,000 a year from the incapacity of these indigent victims of tuberculosis. This would mean a net saving of $150,000,000 a year to the United States if all victims of consumption who are too poor to afford proper treatment in expensive sanatoria were cared for at the expense of the municipality, county or state. And this annual gain does not include the enormous saving that would accrue from the lessened infection due to the segregation of the dangerous consumptives in institutions.

SCRATCHED SO SHE COULD NOT SLEEP

"I write to tell you how thankful I am for the wonderful Cuticura Remedies. My little niece had eczema for five years and when her mother died I took care of the child. It was all over her face and body, also on her head. She scratched so that she could not sleep nights. I used Cuticura Soap to wash her with and then applied Cuticura Ointment. I did not use quite half the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, together with Cuticura Resolvent, when you could see a change and they cured her nicely. Now she is eleven years old and has never been bothered with eczema since. My friends think it is just great the way the baby was cured by Cuticura. I send you a picture taken when she was about 18 months old."

"She was taken with the eczema when two years old. She was covered with big sores and her mother had all the best doctors and tried all kinds of salves and medicines without effect until we used Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. H. Klerman, 663 Quincy St., Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1909."

Clever Joke of Kind King.
King Edward's great nature was illustrated the other night by a London correspondent at the Press club in New York.

"The king," said the correspondent, "was visiting Rufford Abbey, and one morning, in company with his host, Lord Arthur Savile, he took a walk over the preserves."

"Suddenly Lord Arthur, a big burly man, rushed forward and seized a shabby fellow with a dead peasant protruding from the breast of his coat."
"Sir," said Lord Arthur to the king, "this fellow is a bad egg. This is the second time I've caught him poaching." "But the king's handsome face beamed, and he laughed his gay and tolerant laugh."

"Oh, let him go," he said. "If he really were a bad egg, you know, he wouldn't poach."

IMPORTANT ESSENTIALS IN COMFORTABLE CATTLE BARN

Light, Ventilation, Warmth and Convenience Are Among Factors That Go to Make Stable Paying Investment.

Plan of Stable Floor.

As the putting in of the crops is completed farmers will be repairing and remodeling and otherwise improving their cattle barns, many will be building new ones. The average cattle barn is not usually laid out for comfort, and without comfort the dairy cow will be far from doing her best. Convenience is also a most important factor in those times of high-priced farm lands.

Light ventilation and warmth—also convenience—are the essentials in a cattle barn. Windows of ample size must extend on every side and end. The barn should be at least 38 feet wide, and length to accommodate what stock is expected to be kept.

So-called mangers are to be avoided. The cows face the sides of the barn, and for purposes of ventilation and general sanitation, this is the only way a stock barn should be made.

The general construction of the floor plan is well shown in the illustration with details of measurements. The driveway is 8 feet wide between the cows. This is two inches below the general level of the stalls. A gutter, six inches below the driveway and 8 inches below the stalls, is 16 inches wide. This must be watertight to retain the liquids. The stalls vary from 48 inches to 54 inches from the edge of the drop to the stanchions to fit cows of different length. A space of 22 inches is left for a feeding place. A slope rise of 12 inches forms all the manger needed, a space of 5 to 7 feet is left in the front for feeding. The slope partitions should come to within 14 inches of the gutter. The partitions in front should be between every other cow. This allows a water supply for every two cows to drink from. The platform should have a slope of 1/2 inches to the foot to drain the liquid to the gutter.

The best stanchion is the swing-stanchion fastened at the top and bottom with a chain that allows about two inches of play back and front. For ventilation a space is left in front of the cattle, under the breast-girth (3 feet high), and partitioned off three feet high and three feet wide, so that cold fresh air can pass to the stable from the floor above to second story. These boxes may be 15 to 20 feet apart. Over these openings slide doors control the influx of the cold air. The air escapes through the roof. These openings serve for throwing hay down to the feeding alley before pitching to the cows.

SECURE STAND OF POTATOES

Potato Grower Should Take Stock of His Success in Work to This Point in Season—Moisture Is First.

(By C. L. FITCH, Colorado Agricultural College.)

This is the time for the potato grower to observe what sort of a stand he has secured, to take stock, as it were, of his success in his work to this point in the season.

In the first place, moisture is necessary. A potato may sprout, but will not root unless it touches damp soil, and if the season and atmosphere be very dry, growth will be backward, even with moisture beneath. The potato ground should have been filled with moisture before plowing, and the moisture held there by stirring the surface shallow, as with a harrow. If, however, the moisture be not there, the potatoes must be cultivated, ditched and irrigated, and then harrowed lengthwise, as soon as horses can be used.

A heavy rain following planting is a great damage, because it sets the soil of the tuber bed and will damage the shape of the crop. Prolonged rains will rot the seed. The best stands are secured on fields that were plowed in good condition, lightly harrowed, quickly planted, and that then happened to secure one long, gentle shower, followed by warm weather.

Examine the hills that come up last, after the run of the thrifty plants. You will find three causes for these tardy arrivals: Some were in a pocket of dry earth of a field not properly and promptly leveled and harrowed; others will be found growing from very small seed pieces—pieces perhaps broken from the others by the planter; but the most of the runty plants will be found coming from rotten or rotting seed pieces. Thus, moisture, good-sized seed, and sound seed are necessary to a vigorous stand. The best crops are secured in years when the seed stays sound until digging.

And back of all is the planter, and the right size of yew cut seed for it to handle. Seventy-five per cent. is a fair stand; 95 per cent. is far more profitable. Your planter should not miss more than three or four per cent.

Record Onion Crop.

It is claimed that Charles Volz of the Mission community, Mission, Tex., holds the world's record for profits from intensive farming. He recently sold his Bermuda onion crop on 24 acres for $12,982. Deducting the expenses of planting, cultivating, harvesting and marketing, the crop left him a net return of $9,083. The onion yield from these 24 acres filled 22 cars. The product was shipped to northern and eastern markets. The land could have been bought ten years ago for one dollar an acre.

The First Creamery.

So far as known, the first creamery built in the United States was at Middletown, N. Y., in 1863, the second at Binghamton, that state. The creamery business was for a good many years confined to that part of the country. Not until about 25 years ago were any built out through the west.

FREAKS IN CIRCUSES

People Are Strangely Fascinated by the Monstrosities.

When the "Domesticated Gorilla" Got the Show Into Trouble—Hot Water Spills a "Mermaleid" to Uncover Fake.

London.—It seems strange that freaks, from the legless wonder to the two-headed calf, should possess such a strange fascination for nine people out of ten, yet this is undoubtedly the case.

Of course, there are many so-called freaks which have no business to be called by such an unpleasant name, for if one argues from the dictionary a freak is a monstrosity, and a monstrosity, in the generally accepted sense of the word, is something horrible. The giant and the dwarf are interesting and unusual, but certainly should not be called "freaks."

Hunchbacks were an exception to the rule, for all kinds of powers were attributed to them. There are some very sensitive people to whom the sight of anything in the nature of a monstrosity is absolute pain, and women are fortunately few and far between who fall in love with a monster because of his monstrosity, as in the case of Victor Hugo's "L'homme qui rit."

The ordinary individual comes across very few physical freaks, and one cannot but wonder whence the showman's rank and file are recruited. Perhaps, if the truth were known, more than half of the show freaks are "fakes." There are many good stories told of these sham freaks, who, owing to some contempts, have "given the show away." The two following are good examples:

Among the freaks of a certain show was a "domesticated gorilla," to quote the handbills, and he proved one of the finest draws the show had ever had. After the performance no one could have recognized the gorilla, as he then took the shape of a very quiet, ordinary little man. The public particularly enjoyed seeing the gorilla swing from the horizontal bar by his tail, an appendage which is very slightly developed in the species as a rule.

This tall was a masterpiece of ingenuity. It was made of flexible steel, and so contrived that when it took a turn around anything it locked into position until it was released by the gorilla touching a spring concealed somewhere near his waist. The thing worked splendidly for a long time, until one day the gorilla put his tail through the bars of his cage, and a lady standing by took hold of it.

Well, the tall acted automatically, as usual, and of course when she felt it tighten around her wrist the lady screamed. The gorilla pressed the hidden spring to no purpose. To make a long story short, the men standing by came to the lady's rescue, took hold of the tail and pulled it off! When the people saw the leather fastenings and buckles they "cleaned out the establishment."

The second story concerns a mermaleid. She was no ordinary mermaleid, but a "really high-class article," a very handsome young woman incased from the waist down in blue and gold fishskin. The water in which she smoked, and sang, and sat on a rock combing her hair was kept tepid so as not to give her a chill, and this was what gave her enemies—the beautiful Circassian girl and the dwarf—a chance to injure her.

They were jealous because she attracted more attention than they did, so they hatched a plot, which the dwarf carried out successfully. One day he pretended to be ill, and got a day off, and just before the mermaleid's performance he hid himself in the boiler-room. After the man had been down to see that there was not too big a fire, the dwarf set to and stoked for all he was worth.

The mermaleid soon felt that something was wrong, but she stood it as long as she could. At last, however, she had to choose between being boiled or giving the thing away, and naturally she preferred the latter alternative; but, as the showman put it, the public said things that were "very discouraging" and the show had to move on.

There Should.

Fritz the gardener was a stolid German who was rarely moved to extraordinary language. Even the most provocative occasions only caused him to remark mildly on his ill-luck. Not long ago he came back from the city in the late evening after a hard day in the market place. He was sleepy, and the train being crowded, the baggageman gave him a chair in his roomy car.

Finally the train reached Bloomfield. Fritz still slept as it pulled in and his friend had to shake him and tell him where he was.

"I thank you," said Fritz, as he rose slowly to his feet. The open door of the car was directly in front of him. He walked straight out of it.

The baggageman sprang to look after him. Fritz slowly picked himself up from the sand by the side of the track, looked up at the door, and said with no wrath in his voice:

"There should here be some steps."

Judges' Wigs.

The wig is only worn by English barristers to give them a stern judicial appearance, and no one can say that it falls in this respect. The custom was originated by a French judge in the seventeenth century when, happening to don a marquis' wig one day, he found it gave him such a stern and dignified appearance that he decided to get one for himself and wear it at all times in court. This he did, and the result was so satisfactory from a legal point of view, that not only judges, but barristers, also, took up the custom throughout Europe.

SHROPSHIRE EWE OF QUALITY

The Shropshire ewe, shown in the illustration, owned by George McKerrrow & Sons of Wisconsin, is remarkable for quality. She was champion at the 1908 International at Chicago and is considered by many judges one of the very finest animals ever exhibited, says American Agriculturist.

She is well developed, with a broad back, short legs and compact fleece.

If a man does not know how to prune a tree, he can with safety at least cut out all the suckers and keep the ground free from weeds and underbrush.

THOMAS F. BURNS

Candidate for Minority Representative in the General Assembly

HIS PLATFORM

"I favor the economical expenditure of public monies and the immediate abolition of old time extravagant methods. I favor laws that will be beneficial for the farmers, dairymen and stock-raisers of this great commonwealth, the municipal control of gas, electric and water systems, the establishment of good roads and an economical system of expenditure for their permanent maintenance, convict labor to be used as far as possible. I favor the passage of laws that protect the members of fraternal insurance organization, against the encroachments of powerful old line insurance companies. In am opposed to any deep waterway legislation by this state until such time as the Federal Government assures its financial support of the project. I am for the rigid enforcement of laws governing the practice of medicine and surgery, and the enactment of such laws as will protect the people against unscrupulous practitioners. I believe there should be just and equitable measures of protection to employer and employee, the conservation of all our national resources, the encouragement, support and advancement of all our public, educational and charitable institutions, in order that they may be placed on the highest plane of efficiency."

English Women's Feet Larger.

English women rapidly are becoming rivals of the Chicago women. They are developing big feet. Statistics prove it. Investigation recently made in London shows that the average woman there is taking substantial fives and sixes in shoes instead of the little twos and threes which were not uncommon in the past. "The average size of English women's feet," said a member of a shoe firm in the Strand, "is growing gradually larger. In the last ten years the smallest size in which we produce new fashions has risen. The reason that we do not stock the small sizes is that we have no demand for them. Eight is no uncommon size for a woman to wear. American women cannot wear English boots, as they have insteps that are more arched than the average English instep, which is usually flat." The same boot-maker, however, said he had observed that in the case of American women their feet were getting smaller.

The Best Hour of Life

It is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt, of Rocky Mt., N. C. when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had, I then proved to my great satisfaction, what a wonderful cold and cough cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." It is the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, hemorrhages, lagrippe, asthma, hay fever, any throat or lung trouble. 50c. $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by J. H. Swan.

Explanation Simple.

"Dis paper," said Meandering Mike, "wants to know why de cities is overcrowded when dere is so much work offered in de country." "Well," responded Plodding Pete, "ain't dat de reason?"

On Husbands.

The silliest fellows are, in general, the worst of husbands; and it may be asserted as a fact that a man of sense rarely behaves very ill to a wife who deserves very well.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dusted, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scaling pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine, you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MARK THE MARQUETTE MARK TIGHT SILOS

A good silo will pay for itself in one year. One that isn't absolutely air-tight is worse than useless. Wooden silos cost nearly as much, every year, in repairs and insurance as they save. Silage juices rapidly decay wood—this material makes a short-lived structure. Cut cost and insure satisfaction by building a Marquette Portland Concrete Cement silo. No insurance, no repairs, just steady, efficient service year in, year out—and generations to come will use your Marquette-Concrete silo with the same satisfaction that you yourself will experience. We'll gladly send you details for making a silo with
